Thank you for creating with WordPress.

All Pages auto installed by the plugin are hidden from the wordpress menus
So if you're using the blog for more than just a squeeze page they will not show up in the page menus.

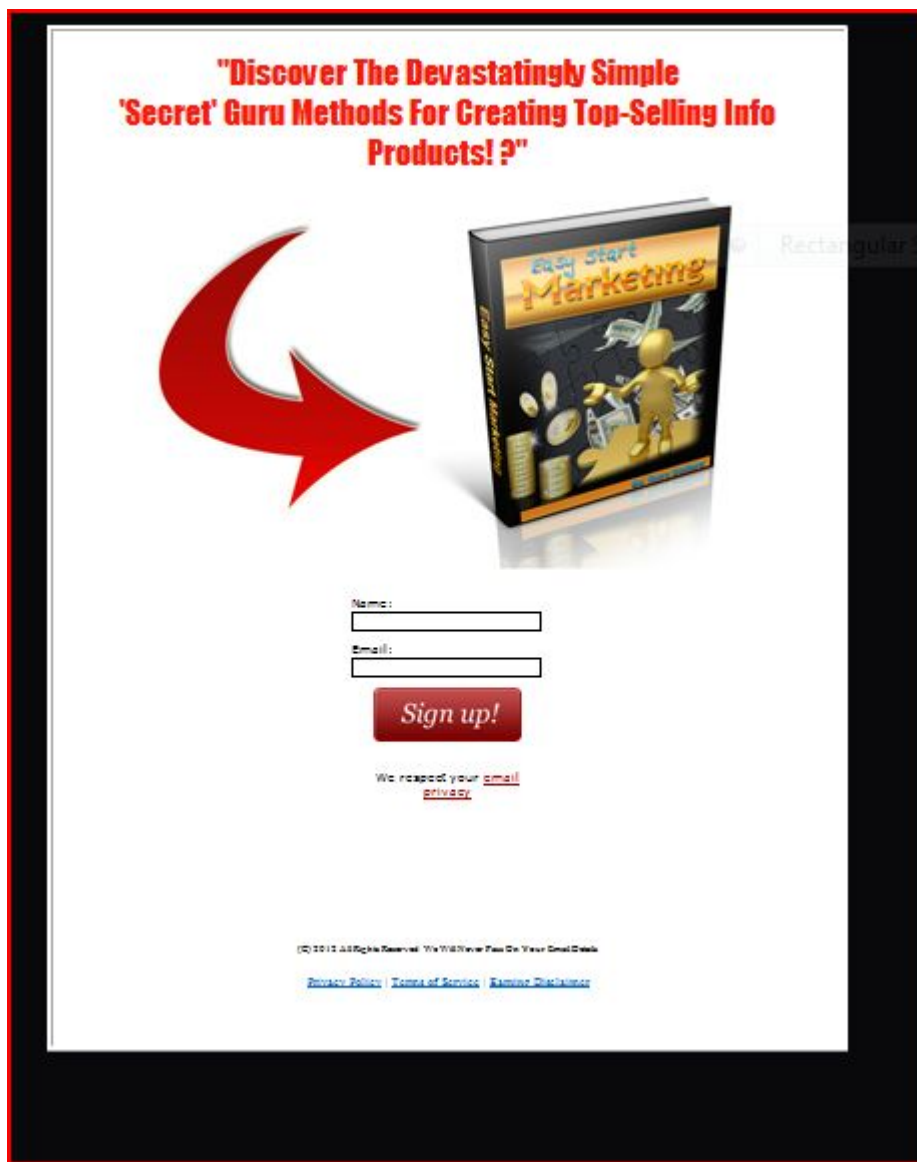

If you are going to use the install as just a squeeze page simple go to the reading tab under setting in the dashboard and set wpeasyoptin squeeze page as the static front page.

If you are using wpeasyoptin as part of your blog you will have to use a link to this page

You can change the name of the squeeze page from wp-easyoptin-squeezepage to anything you wish but the page will then show on the wp munu..ok

DO NOT change any of the other page names ..as the internal links will not work
